YEARBOOK OF THE SENIOR CLASS
JUNE 1953 LAFAYETTE HIGH SCHOOL
BENSON AVENUE BROOKLYN, NEW YORK
DR. FREDERICK WILLIAM OSWALD, PRINCIPAL

DR. OSWALD

TO THE CLASS OF JUNE 1953:

Last week a lad came into school, introduced himself as a graduate of ten years ago and asked if he might show his wife the school. He was proud of his school and wanted her to know it as he did.

I hope that each one of you has this same pride in not only the school but also in himself, in his power to move forward and in his success in attainment. I would have you proud of what you are, proud of being young, when the time comes just as proud of being old, proud of being a graduate of Lafayette, proud of being an American, and above all, proud of democracy as the best form of society. Being thus proud you will pledge yourself to making it better and better to the end that this world may become ever a fine place for ourselves and for our children.

Your Principal,

FREDERICK WM. OSWALD

Dear Boys and Girls,

May the future bring you happiness and success. I hope that you leave us, well schooled in lessons, well developed in character, to justly and forthrightly meet the new challenges that face you. May you always regard your stay here at Lafayette with affection for all of us who have worked with you, with appreciation of the good that we have tried to instill and with a full sense of things achieved. May you go armed with courage and goodness.

I am grateful for the part that I have been allowed to play in your growing up. It is hard to say goodbye to boys and girls whom I have grown to love and whom I would wish to keep near me, and yet, it is that very goodbye that brings you closer to the fulfillment of all my wishes for you. I know you can only achieve this by taking the next step. With each new step my prayers attend you.

Goodbye and God bless you all.

June, 1953

This is our Legend—yours and mine. It is a legend of four wonderful years at Lafayette. It is a symbol of the fulfillment of our ambitious strivings.

As young boys and girls entering Lafayette, we were unaware of the legend that was to be ours. But as time passed, every friendship formed, every accomplishment, and every hope and ideal created became an integral part of that legend. We weren't aware of it then, but now, every experience remains as a never-to-be forgotten memory in our Legend.

As we look back now, we realize that a substantial foundation for our life's work has been given us during these four years. It is upon this foundation that we must build our lives and our careers. We are now young adults who must face the uncertain future without the guidance and advice of our teachers. But we are equipped! The training which we have received at Lafayette will enable us to deal with the perplexing maze of hopes and fears in life.

A pleasant chapter of our lives has ended with this Legend, but a more challenging one will begin. For some, graduation will mean embarkation into the business world. For others, it will mean the continuation of studies in college. For all, it will mean the leaving behind of our childhood and immaturity.

Yes, it is with reluctance that we leave our Alma Mater; and, it is with great sorrow that we say our Lafayette legend is over.

Thou Swell

A former native of Rye, N. Y., Miss Daly migrated to the big city. She attended the Savage School for Physical Education and later on received a B.S. and M.A. at N.Y.U. Even as a youngster in grade school, Miss Daly had visions of some day becoming a teacher. This term her teaching program consisted of both English and Physical Education. As a hobby, Miss Daly enjoys reading. Her advice to seniors is to follow the golden rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

MISS DALY

MR. DYCKE

A native New Yorker, Mr. Dycke attended Evander Childs High School, and then continued his studies at Juilliard, C.C.N.Y., and Columbia University. As do the majority of the others in the teaching profession, Mr. Dycke also has a favorite type of student. There are those who are interested in some phase of the arts: painting, music, or photography. To all the members of the senior class he bequeaths his best wishes for a harmonious existence.

One of Lafayette's attractive teachers is Mrs. Greenfield. She attended New Utrecht High School and then went on to Hunter and City College. She is a teacher of stenography and typing and enjoys everyone of her classes. Sewing, knitting, and reading are her leisure time hobbies. Mrs. Greenfield, very contented with her life as it is, advises the seniors to continue their education. She feels every student should go to college.

MRS. GREENFIELD

MR. GOLDBERG

Mr. Goldberg is an alumnus of the Savage School of Physical Education. His vast personal interests include sports, and the running of a children's camp. He hopes to achieve happiness for his children as well as others, and would like to travel with his family to various parts of the world.

For the graduates he stated, "I hope the senior class has realized the opportunities and training they have had in high school, so that they may be prepared for college, and, in later life, for being useful citizens."

One of the favorite teachers of all students taking secretarial courses is Mrs. Lifton. The star she has set her future goal upon is to have her two daughters mature into fine young ladies. Everyone hopes to have at least three of their wishes become a reality. Mrs. Lifton's are: world peace, health, and money adequate to enjoy leisure time. "Education need never end with a high school diploma," is the advice Mrs. Lifton hopes we will remember.

MRS. LIFTON

MR. GOLDSTEIN

We are proud of Mr. Goldstein, a top member of our science department. He is one of the teachers in Lafayette who thinks all his students are wonderful. He enjoys his work very much. He enjoys music. He plays the violin, clarinet, saxophone, and guitar. He is an expert repairman of radios and television and is also a good tennis and golf player. His advice to the seniors is that they should enjoy their own lives and be considerate of other people around them.

During those heavenly months of July and August we discover Mr. Rappaport as a summer resort owner. A graduate of Boys High School and C.C.N.Y., he has been teaching in Lafayette for thirteen years. At home he is the proud possessor of "two dynamos" (a son and daughter). His journeying has taken him throughout the United States and he hopes someday to go abroad to Europe. His advice to the seniors is, "Be optimistic in the face of adversity. Measure up to your responsibilities as a citizen in a democratic society. Work up to your capacity and develop interesting hobbies."

MR. RAPPAPORT

MRS. PALEVSKY

A teacher of bookkeeping and business machines, Mrs. Palevsky enjoys teaching only when the students are cooperative and well behaved. A graduate of N.Y.U., Mrs. Palevsky enjoys music and would some day like to travel. She advises the seniors to continue going to school, keep up with current events, and thereby make social contacts.

A graduate of C.C.N.Y. and Columbia, Mr. Santora's interest in art doesn't end with his last art class, for it is his main interest beyond the walls of Lafayette. Among the centers of his other personal interests are his family, the tango, and track. His advice to the seniors is, "In anything you do, give it your best. When you work, work hard; when you play, play hard. And if, whether at work or play, you add a measure of enthusiasm to what you are doing, then you will really enjoy it. That is the secret of happiness and contentment."

MR. SANTORA

MR. SCHNAPP

Lafayette's choice as one of the Chief Physicists for the Atomic Energy Commission, Mr. Schnapp, is an alumnus of N.Y.U. and Columbia University. He was a former pre-med student but while witnessing an operation he changed his mind and decided to become a science teacher. Mr. Schnapp is an ardent fan of the Giants. He also enjoys fixing radios and television during his spare time. His advice to the seniors is to be courteous at all times to everyone. Courtesy, if practiced long enough, will become a worthwhile habit.

MRS. SIMONS

Mrs. Simons, an alumnus of Cornell University, has been in Lafayette since its opening. Before coming to teach Biology here, Mrs. Simons taught at New Utrecht High School. After the school day terminates, her role in life returns to that of a mother and "ordinary housewife." A true botanist at heart, one of Mrs. Simons' favorite hobbies is plant growing. To consume any other possible spare time, she works at her other hobbies which are photography and ceramics. Mrs. Simons advice to graduates is "to choose a field best suited for their ability."

MR. WOLFE

Math can be most interesting when we have Mr. Wolfe at the head of the class. A graduate of Erasmus High School, he also attended Brooklyn College and N.Y.U. Because a professor of mathematics made the subject very interesting, he was very impressed and decided to become a math teacher. During the war, Mr. Wolfe was in the Air Force and traveled through Africa. His hobbies include playing chess, bridge, and traveling. He taught at Tilden before coming to good old Lafayette three years ago. His advice to the seniors is that they should be fair to themselves and to their fellow-man.

MRS. WAKS

Mrs. Waks, a graduate of Morris High School in the Bronx, is an alumnus also of Hunter College and New York University. When her daily instructions in giving pupils of Lafayette the ins and outs of a typewriter and the strange language of stenography are over, Mrs. Waks returns to her family and her new hobby, golf. Her greatest wish is world peace and happiness for her children and pupils. For the graduating students she reminds us that "there are many opportunities offered for the continuation of education for commercial students as well as those who will matriculate in colleges."

Physical Education is enjoyable for boys when Mr. Yudell is the teacher. An alumnus of the Savage School of Physical Education and N.Y.U., Mr. Yudell taught in New Utrecht before coming to Lafayette fourteen years ago. He coaches the soccer team and enjoys such sports as golf and tennis. His pet peeve is boys who try to get away with things. He thinks all boys should be treated alike. His advice to the seniors is that they should be prepared for an entirely different set up when they leave high school. Life isn't as easy in the outside world as it was in Lafayette.

MR. YUDELL

MRS. WINCHESTER

Mrs. Winchester, one of Lafayette's health education instructors, is an alumnus of Erasmus Hall High School and N.Y.U., a member of Mr. Eustis' art class for teachers for five years; her most important hobby is oil painting. She plans to travel throughout the Unted States, continue painting, and hopes some day to see California and the West. Her advice to the students is, "If a job is worth doing, it's worth doing well."

One of the many teachers in Lafayette High School who really enjoy his classes is Mr. Zuckerman. He has attended City College and Columbia University. Mr. Zuckerman loves teaching mathematics, which he thinks is the easiest subject in the high school curriculum. His hobbies include swimming and ice skating. He hopes that all his wishes come true. He advises the seniors not to blame any one person for the tough breaks in life. "Each graduate is the master of his fate and the captain of his souls," concluded Mr. Zuckerman.

Samuel Zuckerman

MR. ZUCKERMAN

MRS. BRENNEN

Mrs. Brennen, home economics teacher in Lafayette High School for thirteen years, was born and brought up in Manhattan. She received her B.A. and M.A. degrees at Hunter College and Columbia, respectively. Mrs. Brennen furthered her education by taking special courses at Pratt Institute and N.Y.U. She enjoys her job of teaching nutrition and cooking, because of the pleasure she derives from being with young people.

Mrs. Brennen advises the seniors: "Happiness comes from efficient action."

The Best Years Of Our Lives

If we were to turn back the clock to our earliest days at Lafayette, how much do you think you could remember?

Let us refresh our memories by following the footsteps of Joe and Jill as they enter the classroom of their favorite teacher, Mr. H. S. LaFayette.

"During your high school years, life must have been simply thrilling!"

¶ "It certainly was! With the coming of radio, domestic relations were strained. Each radio was equipped with only one set of earphones and quarrels ensued over their use."

"That sounds familiar, doesn't it, Jill?"

"You bet! With television in our house, there's no peace. My brother is a loyal cowboy addict, my father's a sports enthusiast and mother and I just want quiet, relaxing entertainment."

¶ "Young lady, you're going ahead of me! When I entered High School _____."

"Joe, remember our freshman year? After forfeiting part of our much needed allowance to some enterprising senior we discovered that the swimming pool and escalator were merely a Legend.

"The concert featuring music from South Pacific made us realize that there was more to school than just books. During that year Lafayette played host to the Tri-School Dance and the Twirlers were inaugurated."

"Jill, remember the two days we spent at City Hall, fighting for an increase in the teachers salary?"

¶ "But all your protests went for naught," interrupted Mr. LaFayette. We didn't get a raise and your extra-curricular activities were suspended.

"Let's get back to my high school days. I remember the anti-prohibition demonstrations throughout the country, during my sophomore year."

"Our sophomore year also had its protests. With the G.O., the Legend, the Student Court and Speakers' Bureau the only organizations active, we made tremendous efforts to get back our extra-curricular activities."

"Our first two Regents exams were in that year too, Joe, I recall giving up dates in order to study for those dreaded tests."

"Looking back on it now, Jill, it wasn't so bad after all."

¶ "Back in 1924, when I was a Junior, the American people returned Calvin Coolidge to the White House and_____"

"Our Junior year culminated with the election of Eddie Strasser and Artie

Fisher to the offices of president and vice president of the G.O. At the first meeting of the term, the council voted to build bleachers and on the basis of their achievements Eddie and Artie were re-elected. The student body voted to separate the offices of vice president and the Chief Justice of the Student Court.

"Jill, that reminds me of our Senior class watching Lafayette's football team rip through the league and finally clinch the P.S.A.L. Championship."

"Joe, didn't Coach Ostro receive recognition as Coach of the Year?"

"That's right Jill, and don't forget our Soccer team. The Yudellmen crashed through the division to cop the Brooklyn title for the eleventh time."

"Our football team romped through the season, Jill and the championship just slipped through our fingers."

"Joe, do you remember the wonderful time we had at the Spring Dance?"

"How about the night we went to the Varsity Show! What was the name of it . . . Birdies on the Fireplace?"

"No Joe, it was Cuckoos on the Hearth and I was rolling in the aisles all through the performance."

¶ "Prosperity boomed as I entered my Senior year and Florida reached its peak as a winter resort. Red Grange the Galloping Ghost, was plunging into football fame."

"With Ted Smoller, president, and Sheila Josefsberg, veep, at the helm of the G.O., we started our 8th term."

"How proudly we displayed our Senior buttons at the Varsity Show, Act Your Age."

"Joe, I'll always remember those wonderful nights at the Prom and the Senior Show. The Boatride to Bear Mountain was unforgettable."

"We elected Pete Liuzzo, Neal Cohen and Renee Stein to head our Senior Council, and they promised us the time of our lives."

"And on Graduation day," thought Joe and Jill, "when we reluctantly said goodbye to all our wonderful friends, a tear came to our hearts as we remembered four fun-packed years at Lafayette.

Curtain Time

The obscure lights grew dim as a perceptible air of expectancy hovered over the pensive audience.

The laborious weeks of preparation had come to an end. Gone were the echoing voices of the persuasive Go-Getters from the halls of Lafayette. Captain HANNETTE RESNIKOFF, CAROL LUSTIG, MARIA FRUGONI, and FLORENCE NIDITCH had succeeded in completing a remarkable project, "Operation Sellout." G.O. officers TED SMOLLER, SHEILA JOSEFSBERG, LENORE STEINHAUS, and ARLINE FRIEDMAN supervised the performance.

The curiosity of all was aroused by an avalanche of publicity bestowed upon the coming event by SEYMOUR EISENMAN, FILAMENA DE SENA, and IRENE LEVINE, editor of the Lafayette News. Participants, directors, and dates were mentioned, but not an inkling of the actual theme was revealed, except that its purpose was to celebrate the triumphant victory of Lafayette's football team as the New York City Champions of 1953.

The curtain rose, revealing the mysterious theme. In one corner was a lifelike creation of a Model-T Ford; opposite it stood a copy of Lindbergh's famous plane the Spirit of St. Louis. Paintings of Red Grange, the Galloping Ghost; Rudolph Valentino, the Great Lover; and the Dempsey-Tunney fight comprised the backdrops.

There could be no doubt that these scenes represented the era of the lively Charleston and the carefree flappers—The Roaring Twenties.

It was evident that the scenery, which had been prepared by MOSES TAWIL, ERNIE ROSENBLATT, DONALD SPECTOR, and ALEX RUSKEWICH of the stage squad, had made a deep impression on all.

BARBARA EPSTEIN, of the Legend; JUDY SALINGER, LEWIS STEIN, and CAROL WELT, editors of the News, were taking careful notes of the colorful dancers on stage: CAROL KRAMER, BARBARA TRAMAGLINO, LENORE KAYE, MARION TESCHNER, and MARLENE KIRSCHNER of the Boosters, all doing the ever-popular Charleston.

A spectacular display of twirling by JOAN FISCHMAN, STEPHANIE WARSHAWSKY, IDA PASSAMONTI, and HARRIET HARRIS were seen next, symbolizing the campaign for woman's suffrage.

In a dramatic courtroom act, members of the Student Court portrayed the trial of Al Capone. MILDRED DENES, Chief Justice, appeared as the judge, with KARL FLEISCHMAN, and DEBBIE BABUS as the defense and prosecuting attorneys, respectively, making their pleas to a jury composed of JOAN RUBIN, BARBARA KLEIN, EDWARD FRIEDMAN, RAY PRATI, and LOUIS ROTHMAN.

The remainder of the humorous entertainment was furnished by SID BERGER, LARRY BERNSTEIN, PHYLLIS GROSS, EVELYN EDSON, MARILYN GROSS, ABE MUSLIN, PAT OPPEDISANO, BARBARA WEINSTEIN, WARREN SMITH, and DOTTY BEHAM of the Speakers' Bureau. As time sped on, it became apparent that the ability of the young thespians was equaled only by the versatility of the originators of their material: JEAN RUSSO, ELEANOR YAM, ARLINE LEE, and ELEANORE HARRIS, all of Lafayette's literary magazine, the Marquis.

As the grand finale came to a close, the obscure lights cautiously came to life, the curtain dropped, and the familiar music subsided.

Strange Interlude

My legs ached with each succeeding step and repugnance filled me as I drew near to the locker room. I remembered the torturous exercises we had engaged in during Health Education the previous day and my "Charley-horse" warned me not to risk a repeat performance.

It was at that moment that I began to drift slowly away from the summoning locker room doors and with the piercing shriek of the bell I awoke to find myself seated at the desk in the Legend office. Anguish poured through me as I desperately tried to plan a belated entrance into my scheduled Health Ed. Class.

A sudden gust of wind, accompanied by a bellow of thunder, interrupted my thoughts. As I turned to close the window a fantastic sight greeted my eyes. Tumbling back into the chair, I stared wide-eyed at the sight before me. Slowly the pages of the calendar began to rise and within a few eerie moments the past was revitalized. The hands of time retreated 10 years, 20 years, 30 years and then stopped. As a streak of lightning flashed across the room the figures on the calendar seemed to come to life.

For a moment I could not perceive who these strangely clad people were. Suddenly an old photograph of my mother darted across my mind. This was 1920, of course, and these girls were flappers! But what were they doing here and why were they beckoning to me?

As I drew closer someone handed me an examination and ordered me to sit down and answer the questions. These girls were being given the most important test in their lives and now I too, must take it.

As my eyes skimmed the title a surge of confidence swept over me. This was a comprehensive High School examination, and after having spent four well-taught years at Lafayette, I should be able to skip through it with ease.

"How is H_2S prepared in the lab?"

Chemistry. I seemed to recall vaguely something about properties, valences and ions that they tried so hard to teach me. How vividly I remember that day in Chem. 1 when the lab reeked with an odor of rotten eggs. I suppose it wasn't the teacher's fault that the temperature had dropped to 10° below zero that morning, but why did he have to open the windows? I didn't mind the frost forming on my breath but the design on my new nylon blouse was ruined by the polka-dot pattern of goose-pimples on my skin! As a lower termer I often wondered about that strange aroma which took possession of the first floor several times during the term. Now I knew—H_2S.

"Out, out brief candle—"

These words rang a familiar note in my befuddled brain as I recalled the day in English 7 when we dramatized Macbeth.

It was a bleak, stormy day and the rain was beating frantically against the window panes. The three witches were huddled over their "bubbling" cauldron and a mystic spell was cast over the room.

Next, a maze of numbers came into my view and I was told to prove an identity. All I could remember was the identity of my fellow sufferers during the year of Con-Fusion, as we called it. I don't know why everyone dreaded that course. I really enjoyed flunking Math. 11. I had such interesting classmates that term: Pythagoras, Einstein, Danny Halperin. . . .

A shuffling of feet and babble of voices brought with them the realization that the exam was over. I was left alone in a large, foreboding room and my mind wandered back to the day of my first Regents, when at the completion bell I was the only remaining student.

I remembered that first Regents. The review books, the extra assignments during the Christmas holiday (homework for January 2: three regents, oh no!!), the frantic studying of the list of postulates the brain in my Geometry class was certain would be on the test (none of them were.) I remembered waking up at 4:30 Regents morning and coming to school later with four pens, six pencils (assorted colors), two bottles of ink, three rulers and countless erasers only to discover that I'd forgotten my compass. I recalled thinking that after this experience finals would be simple. But oh, those College Boards! ! !

I thought of how I had labored through 3½ years of High School waiting for my Senior term when I, too, would have connections on the program committee. Tradition holds that the lordly Senior (with connections of course) gets away with five periods—one major, three lunches and senior music, natch!

I remembered all my friends who broke tradition, winding up with eight periods, 7¼ majors, and if they were fortunate, five minutes for lunch, in the locker room.

I had been a bit short of majors and decided to take some practical subjects like Sten. and Type. The first 65 in my life and me a SENIOR! ! !

A bolt of lightning flashed before me and as the storm began to subside and the room grew light I found myself staring wide-eyed at the calendar and the bleak wall of the Legend office. I looked down at my senior pin and realized that I was back in 1953. A glance at the clock told be that my Health Ed. period was already in the sands of time. My fantastic day-dream was at an end and in a short time my High School days would be terminated. They couldn't keep me back just for missing one little gym period; not after I had participated in that startling scientific experiment of turning back the hands of time—or could they? ? ?

What Price Glory

1920 As the 1920's unfolded, the Charleston was the dancing rage and prohibition was at its peak. It was during this time that many of the sport world's figures gained their acclaim.

One of the roughest and most colorful sports in this spectacular era was football. When the great teams of this period met on the gridiron, the sight of blood and broken bones was familiar. The most outstanding team of this age was the great Notre Dame team. From this rough and turbulent sport arose such great stars as John Levi of Haskell College and H. Hardwick, great end for Harvard.

1953 Moving now into our generation, we find football has become a carefully played game.

In high school competition there have been many great teams, but none of which in our opinion can surpass the great Lafayette football team of 1951-52. Some of the players who have made Lafayette such a great team for the past two seasons are AL GOLDSTEIN, LOWELL CHERESKIN, NICK DE CICCO, SAM DE LUCA and ROLAND HOBBS.

1920 Probably the best liked and most exciting sport of this era was baseball, which produced such great teams as the New York Yankees and the New York Giants which brought into focus such immortal stars as Rogers Hornsby, Connie Mack, and the greatest star that sport has ever known, "Babe" Ruth.

1953 Lafayette can also boast of a great baseball team, consisting of such popular players as JERRY BOXER, STAN FISHEL, SAL LA MURA and JACK GIORDANO.

1920 Basketball, not too prevalent during the 20's, has climbed steadily and gained popularity until it is now one of the major sports. During this period Nat Holman of C.C.N.Y. and Claire Bee of L.I.U. drew public attention to basketball.

1953 Lafayette, having a young, but promising team, has developed some of the future greats of basketball. The most notable player is capable SANDY KOUFAX, who has been scouted and will most likely be a future professional basketball player. Credit should also be given to BURT ABRAMOWITZ, FREDDY HORWITZ, JAY LICHTMAN, HESHY RUSSEL, and MARTY LICHTERMAN.

1920 Another sport, not famous in America during the 1920's, but very popular in Europe where it could be compared to our national pastime, baseball, and also well known in Lafayette is Soccer.

1953 Our soccer team has won more championships than any other team in the city. This past season they copped the "Brooklyn-Manhattan" championship. One of the most important factors in their campaign was the outstanding playing of JOHN LO MONACO, JOHN VENTIMIGLIA and DONALD SPECTOR.

As the great teams and players of the 1920's went down in the history of the United States, the stars of Lafayette's great teams will go down in the History of Lafayette.

'ACT

As soon as darkness had fallen blackly over Brooklyn that night, furtive groups of people piled out of an old, unstable car and knocked on a heavily-barred door on a mysterious deadened street. The proprietor, RAY PRATI, peered suspiciously through a chink in the door and demanded the password.

"Mr. Grady sent us," yelled BERTA MELTZER.

As DEANNE GOLDMAN jingled an armful of bracelets to distract Ray, we managed to slip in between MARTY KALMAN, LORETTA FREEDMAN and HARVEY BERKOWITZ. At last we were in a Coco-Cola speakeasy! Here was civilization's answer to the Anti-Coke 23rd Amendment.

The big room beyond the winding corridor was ablaze with light and BARBARA KLEIN, the celebrated chanteuse, was moaning the blues. Sweet and mellow was the music from BRUCE ERLICHMAN's trumpet and JOAN RUBIN, WARREN SMITH, RENEE STEIN, ARTIE KAPLAN and RONALD NEWMAN, were providing a soft, moody background. Dancing to this dreamy music with one arm flung about their partners and the other clenching frosty bottles of coke were STEPHANIE WARSHAVSKY, NEAL COHEN, FLORETTE MIERNIK and ABE MUSLIN. HARRIET HARRIS and JOAN FISCHMAN sat tailor-fashion on the floor and painted striking labels on a case of coke bottles.

As we were a bit shy we asked PETE LIUZZO, the singing head-waiter for a corner table. We had to share one with the members of the fourth estate: SEYMORE EISENMAN, JUDY SALINGER, CAROL WELT, IRENE LEVINE, LEWIS STEIN, ARLINE LEE and FILAMENA DE SENA, who write and publish the "Illegal Daily."

MICHAEL EPSTEIN, SANDY KOUFAX, and ARTIE PERLMAN, members of S.P.A.W.S. (Society for the Prevention of the Accumulation of Wallflowers in Speakeasies) were raking the corners for partners, in an attempt to brighten the life of some forgotten female. Unnoticed in a remote corner, SHERMAN GOLDBERG, bouncer by profession, cast a cold, watchful eye upon the gay proceedings.

Suddenly the brassy lights were blotted out and a huge spotlight rigged up by MOSES TAWIL and ERNIE ROSENBLAT and operated by DONALD SPECTOR shone blindly across the middle of the stage. Trumpets blared, while backstage, BARBARA WEINSTEIN and DOTTY BEHAM slapped the last bits of make-up on stars SID BERGER and MARILYN GROSS. BARBARA EPSTEIN was busily scribbling notes as she interviewed GAIL ROSENBERG and DAVE BART, the celebrated comedy duo, for her magazine, the Suspicious Weekly. Supervising the hectic proceedings, while perched on a high stool, was AUDREY ALTHOLZ.

Everyone cleared the stage as the curtain was rung up on EVELYN EDSON, doing an exotic Egyptian dance. As she reached the last and deepest sway, the room was in the throes of an uproar! The purple-shirted Coke-Stoppers had stormed through the doors in a frenzy of stamping feet, continuing their crusade against the deadly menace of Coca-Cola.

District Attorney (Pepsi-Cola) FLEISCHMANN and chief investigator TED (Seven-Up) SMOLLER dashed through the crowd, breaking stray bottles wherever they found them. Over the loud-speaker the voice of MIKE HYMES shouted, "This is a raid," and ANITA LIEBMAN tried to skate out the back door with ticket-sellers HANNETTE RESNIKOFF, CAROL LUSTIG, and FLO NIDITCH in tow.

LOUIS ROTHMAN of the Legal Daily was already on the scene with his sidekick, LEWIS SAMSON, who snapped photos of investigators SHEILA JOSEFSBERG and LENNY BERKOWITZ as they retrieved bottles of bathtub coke. IDA PASSAMONTI, CAROL KRAMER, LENORE STEINHAUS, ARLENE FRIEDMAN, ELLY HARRIS, and PHYLLIS GROSS hovered in a corner for fear that their faces would be splashed across the tabloids.

The crowd was being herded into patrol wagons and its destiny was to be placed at the mercy of Judge MILDRED DENES. We cast one last, lingering, look at the desolate scene. The barred door hung limp and hingeless, shattered glass was strewn across the floor and a stray cat crept cautiously amidst the debris. As we stepped reluctantly into the patrol wagon, the sun rose over a lonely, broken-hearted patch of Brooklyn.

What's In a Name?

It was June, 1920 when Sandy and Sheila started out to see the famed Rudy Vallee, at the neighborhood theatre. They hastily KRAMS down their meal of BROWN YAMS sent straight from the GARDNER with GALLO wine and DANISH. When the PACE slackened and they decided they couldn't be FULLER, they decided to say goodby to their mother who was WACKS(ing) the floor after washing it with LUCKS soap. "Make SHAW to be home early," she cried after them.

Before they left, she HARRIS(ed) them into BOOTIN(ing) their coats. Once out of the house they felt FRIED, but upon meeting their grandpa had to find his CAYNE as he could not see beneath his BEARD.

Down the street they went past the GLASSMAN, the NEEDLEMAN, and stopping at the EISENMAN for some Ice Cream COHENS. In the store was a little girl holding two KATZ wrapped in a TAWIL. Other then that there wasn't a SAUL in sight. As they reached the theater they could see the GREEN marquis lit up like DIAMONDs. They entered the BLACK theater and went straight to the candy counter. They ordered a GROSS of POPPER corn, and carried it off in two little SACHS. The picture involved a BOXER, a SINGER, a JUDO artist, and a horseback RYDER all in love with a GRANT woman. Throughout the movie the town MARSHALL and house DICK were after the gangster who had a WELT over his eye.

After the movie they took a short cut through the FIELDS to GAINE more time as they realized they had LESSER of it and they had better GEWANT home.

In the distance you could hear
Auld LANG Syne.

You'll never know
WATSON a name.
